Gershom Scholem – Ex Libris Stamp

Ex Libris stamp of Gershom Scholem, ( 1897-1982 )

Metal-cut on a wooden base, inscribed in Hebrew: "Misifrei Gershom Scholem, Be'tochechei Yerushalayim" - from the library of Gershom Scholem, Jerusalem". 2x2.5 inches. See illustration on front cover £1,500

Gershom Gerhard Scholem was one of the major influences on Jewish intellectual life in the 20th Century. Arriving in Palestine in 1923 he became the librarian at the Hebrew University where he began to teach in 1925. Scholem revolutionised the study of Jewish Mysticism and Kabbalah and made it the subject of serious academic study. He also played a very significant role in Israeli intellectual life. This is a one off opportunity to acquire his ex libris stamp.

Half leather, cloth boards, minor wear some foxing. Presentation copy from Benjamin Elkin, the author of the preface. This edition was the subject of controversy. The work was originally commissioned by the Mahamad in 1838 and the work was actually completed in 1839. See Israel Finestein, Anglo Jewry in Changing Times page 172. "In 1842 Benjamin Elkin, ..... caused the translation of the then ready 18 tractates to be published at his expense and without authority. It was is said that he had bought the text as it stood with the private intention of getting it through the press in any event. The Mahamad seems to have intended that the translated text should be available for inspection rather than for general instruction. Elkin named the translators in his Preface but did not disclose that they had no involvement in the decision to publish. He implied the contrary. Matters of protocol soon expanded into a long public debate which went beyond the role of Raphall and de Sola and the unauthorised nature of the publication. It became concerned with doctrine and Rabbinic authority. Elkin's 'reformist' was evident from the Preface....". See Finestein and Moshe Davis, The Emergence of Conservative Judaism for more on Raphall, who was a foremost Preacher and Public advocate for Anglo Jewry of his time. £250

259. Biblical Criticism. A Jewish Reply to Dr Colenso's Criticism on the Pentateuch. London, Trubner and Co., 1865. Issued by the Jewish Association for the Diffusion of Religious Knowledge. ix(3), (11)-147(1) pp. 8vo, original purple cloth. First edition, ex libris. The Bishop of Natal's extensive study of the historical basis of the Pentateuch created wild excitement, and answers poured forth from the pens of those who were shocked by anything less than a literal interpretation of Scripture. This volume presents a quasi-official Jewish response; the preface asserts that most of Dr. Colenso's "discoveries" were well known to ancient authors of the Talmud and Midrash. The NUC lists five copies (ICN, OCH, CLamB, PHi, CtY). Not in Roth. £110

Unique Hebrew Amulet (Cairo Genizah?)

- 381. 520 x 84mm. 66 lines, written in a neat and learned hand on thick paper. The paper is now worn and creased, with some minor losses of text especially down the central fold. The content and orthography, such as the ligature of the aleph and the lamed, match other documents from the Cairo Geniza. The text was written for a certain 'Joseph son of Zilpah that was born of Ramesh'. The text declares itself to be for the protection of this Joseph from 'the evil eye, and the evil tongue and from...and an enemy and the evil tongue and all types of destroyer and all types of retribution...for ever'. Ten names of the Lord are cited: these are given in a list that cites the holy name with the biblical verse from which it is taken. The verses that appear in this part of the text are Deuteronomy 10:17 (which precede the citation of names), Isaiah 26:4, Genesis 14:22, Genesis 17:1, Exodus 20:17, Exodus 3:14, I Kings 2:5, Daniel 9:19, Exodus 34:6, Isaiah 6:3 and Zechariah 14:9. These are followed by another invocation of holy names in biblical/liturgical forms. At this point of the incantation there is a statement that describes Joseph as now having a lion at his right, a leopard at his left, a dragon before him, what might possibly be a bear behind him (the reading is unclear at this point) and the Shekhina (Divine presence) over his head to protect him. He is further described as now donned with the affection and grace of God. The incantation requests that he should be received with complete love, give him his heart's desire and not deny his request. Then follows a list of angel names which we are told caused the face of Moses to redden and who blew in his face. Then another invocation of the 'King of Kings' (ie God) and an 'amen amen selah'. The next group of verses that are cited all contain narratives that depict blessings from God, which are meant to apply to the client. These verses consist of Genesis 6:8, Proverbs 3:4, Proverbs 3:16, Psalm 91:15 and 16. This is followed by two verses, Deuteronomy 6:4 and Psalm 91:1. The incantation concludes with an invocation to the angels to protect this boy. The text is sealed with a citation of the alphabet in full. £5,750
