JEWISH MILITARIA: PART ONE,

216 ITEMS [83 PAGES]

AN EXCEPTIONAL COLLECTION FROM THE
PENINSULAR WAR TO POST WW2

[PART 2 WILL BE AVAILABLE SHORTLY]

[ITEM 141]

INTRODUCTION

A while back, a friend asked me to find a prayer book used by British Jewish soldiers in the First World War. I found one, and showed him several other booklets issued by the Chief Rabbi for serving soldiers and sailors as well as the British Jewry Book of Honour, a massive tome attesting to the service and sacrifice of Jewish soldiers in the First World War. He was hooked, and now, six years later, his rather innocuous initial request led to amassing a cache of over 400 varied documents and ephemera focussing on Jews in the military since 1814.

So what constitutes a 'Jewish Military collection'? Until the 18th century, European Jews were not allowed to participate in large swathes of public life, however, with the advent of emancipation, Jews became integrated into the wider society, where they were both expected to and greatly aspired to play their part in their host societies. Jews demonstrated their patriotism by serving in army and by praying for the welfare of their armies in synagogues.

This catalogue has a bit of everything including:

- Orders of Services: praying for the armies of the host nations. This is a particularly British custom and most are prayers in synagogues of the British Empire for His or Her Majesty's Armed Services;
- Liturgies for use by the serving members of various armed forces, these include daily and festival prayer books
- Haggadot including from India, Germany and Australia
- Educational Texts – books of Jewish history, Jewish Thoughts, diaries, calendars etc produced for the use and education of serving Jewish military personnel
- American Jewish Welfare Board: rare pamphlets and ephemera
- Prints – Depicting Jewish soldiers – many of these relate to the Franco Prussian war of 1870-1871
- Books of Honour, Honour Rolls – works listing names of soldiers who served and gave their lives for their country or for a particular town and a list of Jewish recipients of the Victoria Cross
- Postcards – depicting scenes of Jewish soldiers – seder night prayers led by Jewish chaplains in fields etc
- Newsletters, periodicals produced for Jewish soldiers
- Books about Jews in the military
- Ephemeral items including original letters from soldiers from the front, posters

The earliest piece in this catalogue is a volume of the European Magazine at the time of the Peninsular War 1814 containing the translation of two services praying for the welfare and success of British soldiers - one service is from Bevis Marks, the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue (still standing in all its glory) and the other is from the Ashkenazi Great Synagogue (which no longer exists).

Included are prayers for British soldiers in the Crimean War, The Indian Mutiny, The Boer War, The First World War as well as tiny prayer books and history books for the use of soldiers so they could be secreted away into little pockets in a soldier's uniform. There are postcards for sending home, including some photographic cards showing soldiers participating in the Seder night (Passover Eve) fully decked out in German uniform.

There are extraordinary prints showing artists' impressions of prayers for Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, during the Franco- Prussian War.

The material in this collection is rare as it was not published commercially and given its ephemeral nature, makes it less likely to survive and less likely to be acquired by institutions at the time. Some of the items are very poignant, for example, the Prayer Book for Jewish Sailors and Soldiers starts with a prayer for sailors and soldiers on active service followed by a Prayer Before a Battle in Hebrew and English - "Our Father in Heaven, be with us at this hour! Lead us through victory to peace..." and there are prayers for the sick and wounded.

Amongst my favourites are Colonel Wahab's Notes on the Jews Serving in the Bombay Army. Translated into Marathi ..... Bombay, 1879. In the English introduction it quotes the Voice of Jacob, a London Jewish newspaper from 1845 saying that there were many 'Beni- Israels' in the Bombay army and that they were well behaved and good soldiers.'

A Haggadah (service for Passover) that was produced for soldiers in the British Army in the Boer War is probably the first Haggadah ever produced for soldiers. Some copies (unfortunately not mine) contain the following printed letter

.... It occurs to me that my brethren who are fighting in South Africa may ..... desire to gather together in their respective encampments on the 13th April, the eve of Passover. I take the liberty therefore of enclosing a copy of a shortened form in English of Passover Eve Service.... Let me at the same time offer ..... best wishes for the health and safety of all in the Queen's service. May the approaching festival whether it appeals to them as Passover or Easter, bring the elation of victory..... Alfred Louis Cohen.

Another of my favourite items is a book dedicated to German Jewish Fighter pilots and a small packet of photographs published in Berlin during WW1. The photos include Jewish chaplains on active service and one memorable photo is of a prayer book pierced by the bullet that saved the life of the soldier who had it in his pocket!

What intrigues me is that sometimes different types of materials were produced for different armies or the emphasis was sometimes different pending the country. For example, the Jewish Welfare Board in America, founded 3 days after America entered the First World War, produced many postcards for soldiers to send back home. There are also quite a few German Jewish military postcards but there are very few English ones.

I always wondered why there seemed to be more items produced for German Jewish soldiers than British ones during the First World War and it was explained to me that there were twice as many Jewish chaplains in the German army (30 as opposed to 15). British Jewry is more centralised and much of the material was issued by the Chief Rabbi's Office. I found very little French material and after much hunting found a prayer book for French Jewish soldiers and a couple of pamphlets.

After the First World War there are a number of 'Books of Honour' to record the sacrifices, and honours received by Jewish soldiers. Aside from the British Jewry Book of Honour, there was an Australian Jewry Book of Honour, one for Hungarian Jews, one for Bulgarian Jews during the Balkan wars 1912- 1918, and the most were published in Germany, often related to the Jews of a particular town.

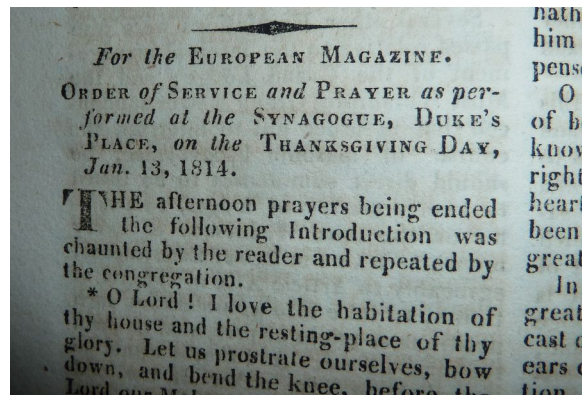

Much of the motivation for producing these books was combating rising anti-Semitism from the Fascists who claimed that Jews were shirkers and profiteers and to demonstrate the patriotic and distinguished service of many Jewish citizens. Rev Michael Adler was motivated by this in producing the British Jewry Book of Honour.

In contrast to the very substantial and robust tome of the British Jewry Book of Honour, is the extremely ephemeral cyclostyled newsletter, Magen David ( Star of David), published by Congregation Ohev Shalom (a group of American Jewish Soldiers). It was initially printed in Finschhafen, New Guinea, and later in Yokohama Japan. It contained news about Jews around the world especially about the Holocaust survivors in Europe and events in Palestine. There is also the cyclostyled newsletter Kol Korea printed in Seoul in 1946 advising soldiers of the regional Sedarim (Passover Eve meals) in Seol and Pusan.

Building this collection was both fascinating and humbling - I am sure there's many a future PhD to be written out of this material – and as Adolph Tuck noted in his preface to the British Jewry Book of Honour about Jewish soldiers,

“.... The sacrifices which they have made for civilization and for freedom show that those who have been accorded equal liberties, irrespective of creed, have not been found wanting at a time their country had most need of them.”

THE BATTLE OF KÖNIGGRÄTZ – AUSTRO PRUSSIAN WAR

The Battle of Königgrätz also known as the Battle of Sadowá, was the decisive battle of the Austro-Prussian War, in which the Kingdom of Prussia defeated the Austrian Empire. Taking place near Königgrätz (Hradec Králové) and Sadowa (Sadowá) in Bohemia on 3 July 1866, it was an example of battlefield concentration, a convergence of multiple units at the same location to trap and/or destroy an enemy force between them.

FRANCO PRUSSIAN WAR

17. OPPENHEIM, MORITZ.

[PRINT] MINIAN. JAHRZEIT-ANDARHT EINES JUDISCHEN SOLDATN NACH DER SCHLACHT BEI WORTH Berlin F. Sala & Co. 52x22 cm, print, mounted ready for framing. 10 Jewish soldiers in prayer after the Battle of Wörth, Franco – Prussian War, 6.8.1870. Sold to raise money for the “Queen Augusta’s Foundation for the Poor Daughters of the Fallen Soldiers of the German Army.” Very good. [ref: 15379 ]

18. OPPENHEIM, MORITZ - DIE RUCKKEHR DES FREIWILLIGEN

52x22 cm, print, mounted, ready for framing, very good condition. “Return of the Volunteer” was painted by Moritz Oppenheim (1800-1882), a prominent German-Jewish artist.

“Oppenheim represents a wounded Jewish soldier in a Hussar's uniform who has just returned to his family after helping to defend Germany against the Napoleonic armies. In his haste to be reunited with his family, the young man has, contrary to Jewish law, travelled on the Sabbath. Ritual objects and food, carefully depicted, indicate the richness and grace of Jewish culture. The soldier's mother and siblings appear in various states of concern and delight as they fawn over their just-returned relative and simultaneously express admiration for his uniform and other military accoutrements. The father's rapt gaze at his son's Iron Cross, a military decoration that is also a Christian symbol, exposes a struggle to resolve his conflicted emotions of pride and anxiety.

The Return of the Volunteer was painted when Jewish civil rights were again in a tenuous state. In the wake of political unrest following the 1830 revolutions in France and their reverberations in Germany, many German states re-imposed repressive legislation that affected rights recently won by Jews. This painting has been interpreted as a reminder to Germans of the significant role played by Jews in the Wars of Liberation.” [From the website of the Jewish useum in New York] [ref: 15378 ]

SECTION 2

FIRST WORLD WAR

During the First World War a much wider range of Jewish materials for serving soldiers was made available. These included Siddurim (Prayer Books), sermons, books about Jewish history and Judaism.

This section is mostly organized by country - Allies and then Central Powers.

United Kingdom

Office of the Chief Rabbi – Literature Under the Editorship of the Chief Rabbi (see British Jewry Book of Honour, page 13)

- Prayer Book – Siddur
- The Jewish Version of the Book of Psalms
- Prayers For Trench and Base
- The Foundations of Religious Fear
- [A Haggadah was also issued]
- [New Year and Day of Atonement Prayers for Jewish Sailors and Soldiers on Active Service]
- A Jewish Book of Comfort for Mourners. First edition (3,000 copies) March 1917, Second Edition (2,000 copies) August 1918.

Siddurim – Daily Prayer Books

The First World War is likely the first war in which special siddurim were printed and issued to soldiers. A Haggadah was produced for the use of Jewish soldiers fighting in the British Army in the Boer War, and was probably the first Haggadah specially produced for soldiers. The first British Siddur for soldiers was issued in 1914 and edited by Rev Michael Adler, the senior Jewish Chaplain in the British Forces. 16,000 copies were issued in September 1914, and it was reprinted with some changes and additions in June, December 1916, April and December 1917, and March, July and November 1918. Some of those printed in 1918 were issued to soldiers in the World War 2 and a calendar of Jewish holidays for 1939 and 1940 was pasted in the back. The British siddurim include special prayers for sailors and soldiers on active service and prayers before going into battle and include a message from HM the King and from Lord Kitchener.

- 41. ADLER, REV. MICHAEL. THE BRITISH JEWRY BOOK OF HONOUR
London, Caxton Publishing Company 1922
 Blue gilt cloth, teg, xix, 636 p., 364 p. of plates, [3] leaves of plates : ill ; 29 cm. some wear to extremities, foxing to endpapers, but a very good copy. A massive tome (3.5 inches thick) on the military contribution of the Jews of the British Empire to the Allies in WWI especially British, Australian, Canadian and Palestinian Jews. Some staining and soiling, shows signs of wear, skillfully rebaked, contains numerous essays, records of honours awarded and rolls of all Jewish soldiers in His Majesty's forces, 364 pages of photographs of Jewish soldiers. A printed letter from Sir Winston Churchill prefaces the book. Lists of honours such as Jewish VCs from WWI and DSOs are included.
 Adler was a chaplain in WW1 and the Book of Honour was written at a time of growing Anti-Semitism so he wanted to demonstrate that the Jews of Britain contributed their fair share, and more, in their service to the UK. Contains essays on the story of British Jewry in WW1, Sir John Monash's record of service and those of Jewish units in WW1. [ref: 4968] £275

BOOK OF JEWISH THOUGHTS

Chief Rabbi Hertz's much loved Book of Jewish Thoughts was originally produced for Jewish soldiers and sailors. Over the war years, it was considerably expanded and by end of the war it had tripled in size. In the preface Rabbi Hertz says

“To My Jewish Brethren on Active Service: I am sending you this little Book of Jewish Thoughts, and hope it will reach every one of His Majesty's Jewish sailors and soldiers. It brings you the undying message of our Holy Faith; memories of Jewish loyalty and martyrdom in the service of God and Humanity throughout the ages; as well as reflections on the higher issues of this world-conflict when viewed under the aspect of Judaism.”

USA

The National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) was formed on April 9, 1917, three days after the United States declared war on Germany, in order to support Jewish soldiers in the U.S. military during World War I. The impetus for creating the organization stemmed from Secretary of War, Newton Baker and Secretary of Navy, Josephus Daniels.

The organization was also charged with recruiting and training rabbis for military service, as well as providing support materials to these newly commissioned chaplains. The JWB also maintained oversight of Jewish chapel facilities at military installations. This collection contains many pamphlets and ephemeral items produced for American Jewish soldiers in both WW1 and WW2. [see Wikipedia]

146. LIBERTY LOAN [BROADSIDE] Boston Liberty Loan Committee of New England 1917

Broadside, mounted and framed, 71x50 cm, advertising the Liberty Bond. The Liberty Bond was a war bond sold in the United States to support the Allied cause in World War I. Subscribing to the bonds became a symbol of patriotic duty in the United States and introduced the idea of financial security to many citizens for the first time. The Act of Congress which authorized the Liberty Bonds is still used today as the authority under which all U.S. Treasury bonds are issued. Text in Yiddish (translation below):

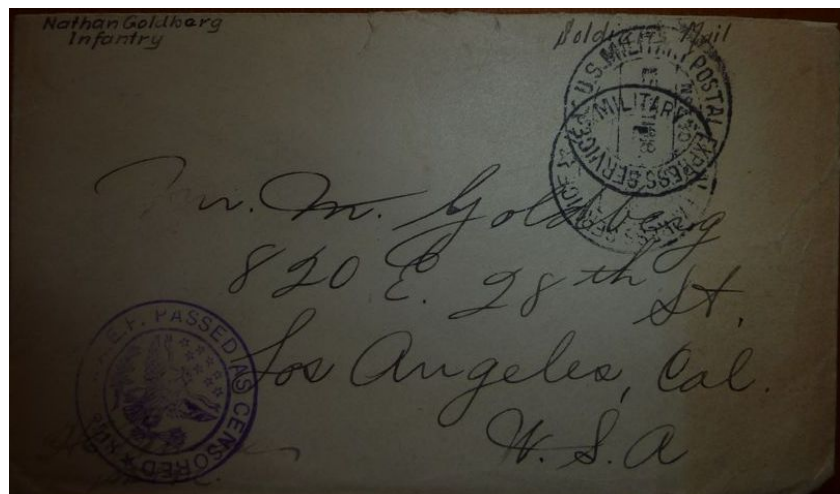

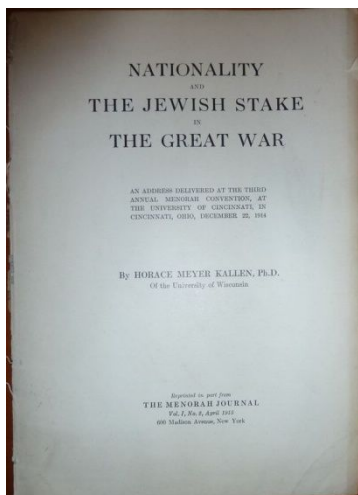

“Attention Jews! The Government of the United States - the richest government in the world - will give you four (4) percent interest for your money which you lend to it, and the people’s promise to pay you (Liberty Bond), as a security for your money. The people’s promise is as good as money. The Liberty Bond can also be exchanged for money at any time. Never before has there been such a good opportunity to put away your money in safe hands while the funds will grow. Those who buy Liberty Bond are not only helping themselves and their families, but they sustain the goal of personal freedom, the ideal for which the American people is fighting, and which all Jews hold dear and value highly. They also help the Jewish soldiers which fight under the American flag. You can buy bonds for $50, $100, $500 or $1000. Applications for bonds, with a deposit of two (2) percent, have to be made from the 1st until the 27th of October, 1917 [...] For all other information, please contact your post master, bank, any financial institution or trust company which will give you blank forms and which will conduct your affairs at no extra cost.” [Ref: 15704]
