INTRODUCTION: The She'arit Hapletah

In an extraordinary display of fortitude and resilience, survivors of the Holocaust, adrift in Displaced Persons' camps from 1945 to 1949, sought to rebuild their intellectual and communal infrastructure as quickly as possible. Astonishingly, within weeks of liberation in Bergen Belsen, a working printing press was founded and Yiddish magazines began to appear.

Holocaust survivors were known as She'arit Hapletah, a Hebrew term of Biblical origin, meaning 'the surviving remnant.' During these four years, these dogged She'arit Hapletah produced a wide range of literature including religious texts, poetry, children's books, newspapers, periodicals and Zionist material that was distributed throughout the DP camps.

This material, which itself became known as She'arit Hapletah, was mostly written in Yiddish or Hebrew and many items have interesting stamps indicating the schools and organizations within the DP camps where the books were used. Additionally, several publishers, primarily in Germany, produced materials such as children's text books, prayer books and books of Jewish law specifically for the She'arit Hapletah. Generally, these were financed by charitable organisations or individuals and sent directly to the DP camps.

She'arit Hapletah material is increasingly rare for several reasons:

- It was not commercially sold, i.e. it was only distributed in the DP camps
- Most of the materials were cheaply produced and did not survive
- Surviving items are very fragile
- When survivors left the camps, many also left behind items that reminded them of their Holocaust experiences. These items were subsequently destroyed when the camps were razed.

Three major camps stand out for producing vast amount of materials by, and for the survivors. The camps were active for a few years, and generally closed by about 1950.

Landsberg

Established on 9th May, 1945, it had been a concentration camp and was liberated by US soldiers on 27th April 1945. It closed towards the end of 1950. Landsberg is situated in Bavaria about 65km south-west of Munich. It was one of the largest centers of Jewish DPs in Europe.

Foehrenwald (also spelt Fernwald)

After Landsberg and Feldafing it was the 3rd largest centre for Jewish DPs in the American Zone, with a relatively high percentage of Orthodox DPs.

Bergen Belsen

The Bergen Belsen concentration camp was liberated by the British on April 15th 1945. It was the only concentration camp to be liberated by the British. It functioned as a DP camp till it closed in 1950.

Due to censorship and a limited amount of resources, all items published during this time were subject to the military authorization in each of the zones. There were several important imprints:

Vaad Ha-Hatzalah

Established in mid-November 1939 by an emergency meeting of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, the Vaad was originally established to rescue rabbis and yeshivah students during World War II. However, once the extent of the Final Solution became known, it expanded its agenda to assist all Jews and became the representative relief agency of American Orthodox Jewry.

After the war, its efforts were focused on caring for the spiritual and religious needs of the survivors including the provision of kosher kitchens, Yeshivot, schools in the DP camps, as well as the supply of religious texts published by the Vaad Hatzalah in Munich under the auspices of Rabbi Nathan Baruch. Chumashim (Bibles), Kitzur Shulchan Aruch and Talmuds and advanced texts for Yeshiva students such as the Shaagat Aryeh or Shev Shmataza were supplied.

Many books have moving dedications just before the title page. The most striking is Item number 132 - a Chumash with a dedication to President Harry Truman with an American flag superimposed over the dedication.

.American Joint Distribution Committee

Set up in 1914 to help the Jewish community in Palestine suffering under Turkish rule in WW1, the AJDC was extremely active in the immediate aftermath of WW2 in rescuing survivors and providing material assistance to them, which included the publishing and distribution of books for the survivors in the DP camps which religious texts (Bible and Prayer related), books for children, Yiddish poetry and literature.

Keter

Books issued under this imprint were published in Landsberg. These are exclusively religious texts.

Kehot

Publishing house of the Chabad (Lubavitcher) Chassidim. They published copies of the Tanya and other works by Lubavitcher Rebbes in Munich.

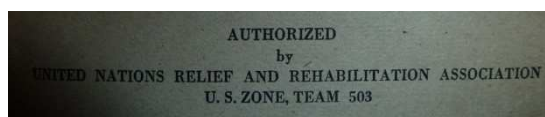

Yaffa (Yaakov HaCohen Friedman)

Books issued under this imprint were published in the Fernwald DP camp. These are exclusively religious texts.

Yitschaki

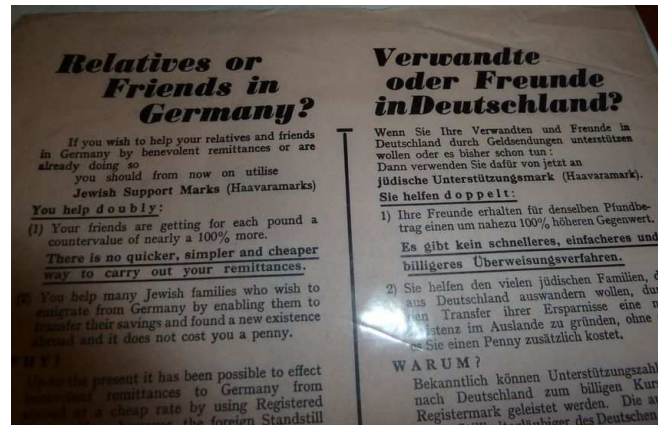

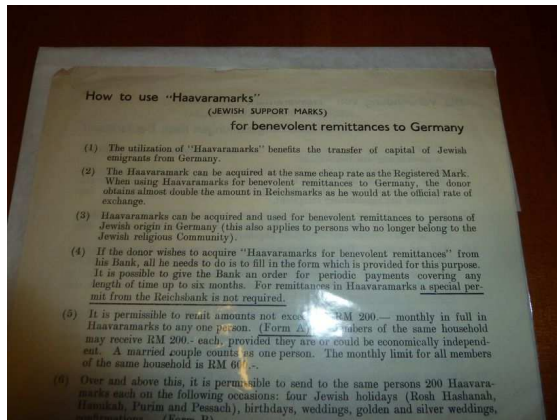

Yitschaki imprints were published in Landsberg. They are mainly Chassidic or classic religious texts.

NOTE: The items on this list were mostly published in the American and British Zones. Additionally, there are a few items printed in Italy and a few in Shanghai. A number of the items on this list identify the authority allowing their production and indicate a licence number or specify the military authority or department granting permission. Below is one example.

A. PRE-WAR EPHEMERA

Haavar Marks were part of a scheme devised by the Warburg Bank to allow German Jews to take a higher percentage of their assets out of Germany. It was a controversial scheme as it benefited Nazi Germany as well as the Jews. Some Jewish Organizations shied away from it. In part, it was a development of the Haavara agreement of 1933.

B. PHOTOBOOKS

5. (RABBI NATHAN BARUCH ED) PICTORIAL REVIEW - VAAD HATZALA GERMANY. Munich: Vaad Hatzala, 1948.

Original printed boards with cloth backstrip. 254, [8] pp. Colour title page. An extremely good copy. Unusual to find one in such good condition. Holocaust, Pictorial Review. Vaad Hatzala.

A photographic record of the activities of the Va'ad Hatzala in the period immediately after WWII and the Holocaust. As an American organization with a base in Munich, the Vaad Hatzala provided for the religious and spiritual needs of the Shearet Hapletah, the survivors. Directed by Rabbi Nathan Baruch, the Va'ad sponsored Yeshivot, schools and synagogues, published religious texts and ran kosher kitchens, distributed Passover products and organized ambulances in the chaos of postwar Europe. It also published a variety of religious texts for the use of the survivors. This pictorial review provides a permanent photographic record of this seminal time and life amongst the Jewish DPs in 20th Century Jewish history.

6. EXTERMINATION OF POLISH JEWS, ALBUM OF PICTURES. Lodz, 1945.
 First edition. Recased in cloth, original wrapper laid down on front board. Oblong 33 x 24 cm. 104 pp of photographs. Ex libris. Includes 252 photographs taken by different photographers and is one of the earliest photographic books on the Holocaust. The photographs were in the Central Jewish Committee in Poland. According to Parr and Badger '...without the means to print them on a press, they re-photographed them and bound them together as copy prints on photographic paper.'

The photographs have been grouped in discreet sections showing the different stages of the Holocaust in Poland: the persecution of the Jews in the first period of the occupation; the suffering of the Jews during the formation and existence of the Ghettos; the Death camps.

7. OLEVSKI, RAFAEL AND DAWID ROSENTAL AND PAUL TREPMAN
UNDZER HURBN IN BILD, OUR DESTRUCTION IN PICTURES. Bergen Belsen: Unser Sztyme (Our Voice), December, 1946.

Oblong folio, conservation case-bound using fully acid free materials, the decorative colour wrapper on top has been inset to prevent any damage. Published under the auspices of the Central Committee of the Liberated Jews in the British Zone. The text is in English, Yiddish, Hebrew and German. Each language has its own title page. Printed on card. Contains 115 photographs of the destruction of the Jews by the Nazis. Each page contains 3 or 4 pictures. The introduction of the book poignantly describes its purpose:

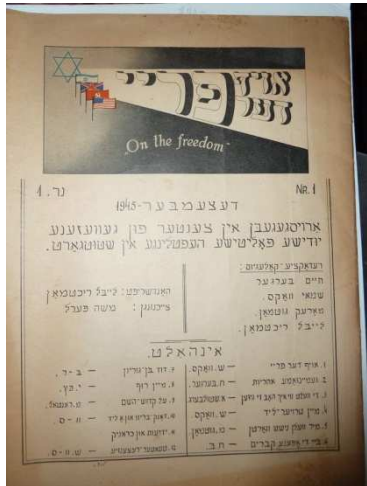

"The incentive to produce this collection gave us our deepest desire to show the world the crimes of Germany, to give expression to the throttled cry of pain of the Jews. The desire to bring back our memories of Jewish Settlements which were drowned in torrents of Jewish Blood. May the world have this knowledge and ponder on it. When words are too weak and too poor to convey the destruction and extermination of Jewish life, may these pictures found by accident on arrested SS Soldiers, speak for themselves of the bestiality which will forever bring shame on human kind". There is a Yiddish inscription on Yiddish title page.

Rare and Important Periodical - Unzer Sztyme -

Edited by Rafael Olevski, David Rosental and Paul Trepman, Unzer Sztyme first appeared in July 1945 and was the first Yiddish publication/periodical for and by the She'arit Hapletah.

"Due to the strict British rule prohibiting publications in the camps, as well as the shortage of paper and printing equipment, they were only able to produce the first issue on July 12th 1945 during their stay in Celle, near Belsen. Handwritten in calligraphy copied by hectograph, it appeared in 150 copies. The following three issues appeared monthly also handwritten. From November 1945, after receiving donations of three typewriters, the issues were typed, duplicated by stencil and issued biweekly (when paper shortages permitted). In August 1946 it finally began to appear in print, thanks to the press donated by the New York Association of Jewish Writers."

It lasted for more than 2 years, the October 1947 issue, its twenty-fourth was its last. See Page 41 Tsemach Tsimron and pages 154/155 Lavsky - New Beginnings

1946. Original wrappers, 18.5cm, 223 pp, very good condition. Text in French. In translation: "Much has been said about the World Jewish Congress. The Moroccan Delegates spoke in Casablanca, Rabat, Safi, Fes, Mazagan etc. to create for their Jewish population an accurate but necessarily synthetic picture of the Atlantic City Conference. Furthermore, during a meeting in Casablanca in 1945, those same delegates (with the agreement of the Moroccan wing of the World Jewish Congress) decided to broadcast a summary of the report made by them to the Casablanca Conference. Public lectures and documents were made available to the Jewish population but these were not sufficient to enlighten those who wanted to engage in any serious study of the work which took place at Atlantic City, while simply having additional available information unpublished. It is for this two-fold need that this responsive work has been conceived and executed." [ref: 7907]

Original cloth, gilt title, 20 cm, 70 folios, text in Hebrew. High holidays sermons of Rabbi Dov Ber Schneerson (1773-1827), the eldest son of R. Shneur Zalman. After his father's death in 1813, he became the leader of the majority of his father's Chassidim and settled in the town of Lubavitch. He was a prolific writer and wrote many works, in which he expounded the Chabad doctrine, including "Kuntres ha-Hitpa'alut" (Tract on Extasy). At the same time he supported the idea of productivisation in Jewish economy and encouraged his Chassidim to take up manual occupations. He also persuaded all the Chabad Chassidim in the Land of Israel to settle in Hebron (1820). Dov Ber was imprisoned for a time because of accusations against him by an informer, but was released on the 10th of Kislev, which is celebrated as a holiday among Chabad Chassidim. Original wrappers, 17cm, 96 pp, text in German. Yellowing throughout, corner of back wrapper chipped, tearing to spine. History of the "Exchange Camp" in Bergen-Belsen, where various groups of Jews, whom the SS and the Foreign Office planned to exchange for Germans interned abroad or for foreign currency or commodities, were held. Between July 1943 and December 1944, at least 14,600 Jewish prisoners, including 2,750 children and adolescents, were transported to the Bergen-Belsen exchange camp. The SS had set up separate areas of the camp for different groups of prisoners: There was the so-called "star camp" which held a large number of Dutch Jews, the "Hungarian camp", the "special camp" for Polish Jews and the "neutrals camp" for prisoners from neutral countries. A total of only around 2,560 Jewish prisoners were ever actually transported from Bergen-Belsen and released.
